Consider Anderson College

FIRST: Because it is a Southern college of distinction in the field of education. It is a pronounced leader in the movement of standardization for Christian schools under Christian direction. Its stamp on the student is positive and characteristic of the genuine progress now being made in educational ideals in the education of women.

SECOND: Its equipment for comfort and ideal study conditions are means to an end, and that end the training of a girl to be a woman who has found herself and is prepared in spirit and in technique to face the world as it is and to measure up to the leadership and service of her day and generation.

THIRD: From the moment a girl enters Anderson College she comes under the pressure of strong personalities—president, deans and instructors—who have given themselves to great work with distinction, and the girl feels it and is drawn up by it to do things with all her power—yea, and beyond her power.

FOURTH: The standards of curriculum are maintained according to the requirements of standard courses leading to the A.B. and B.S. degrees, but independently in anticipation of reforms which are coming on in the education of women. Anderson College is a thinking college—academic conventions long outworn do not hamper it.

FIFTH: We are opening the way immediately through Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin and Mrs. Gertrude Pratt for the Anderson College girl to measure her life in the terms of public as well as private service and to prepare her for citizen motherhood and for individual initiative. In society, in the church and in the circles of intelligence she will stand on her own two feet and through her training at college be able to give a reason for the faith that is in her.

SIXTH: We emphasize the practical and useful tendencies in the schools of Domestic Science and Commerce. In Music and in Art the practical and humanly helpful ideals are dominant. The Department of Music in Anderson College is a genuine Conservatory.

SEVENTH: You are invited to consider the location, health conditions and peculiar attractions of Anderson, an upland city in a beautiful country, with fifteen thousand people, who regard Anderson College with the greatest pride and affection. It has the provisions of a modern hotel equipment of bath and every up-to-date appointment attached to every room. Its rates are moderate indeed, in view of the dining room, dormitory and superior faculty standards.

EIGHTH: It needs scarcely be assured that Anderson College is distinguished for its Christian atmosphere and opportunities. It is owned and directed by the South Carolina Baptist State Convention with a unique identification with the largest church of any denomination in South Carolina, of which its president is pastor. MAIN ENTRANCE FROM BOULEVARD

THREE stone gateways lead into the beautiful campus of thirty-five acres. The six up-to-date brick and slate buildings of Anderson College are situated at the crest within the Little Campus, which is an embowered terrace of trees and flowers. The buildings, ten years old and less, are of the latest intelligence for comfort of life and study—connected by corridors and ornamental loggias, which afford sun parlors and open social areas of beauty. The campus confronts the Boulevard and is approached by three avenues of asphalt from the city center, which is just a mile away.

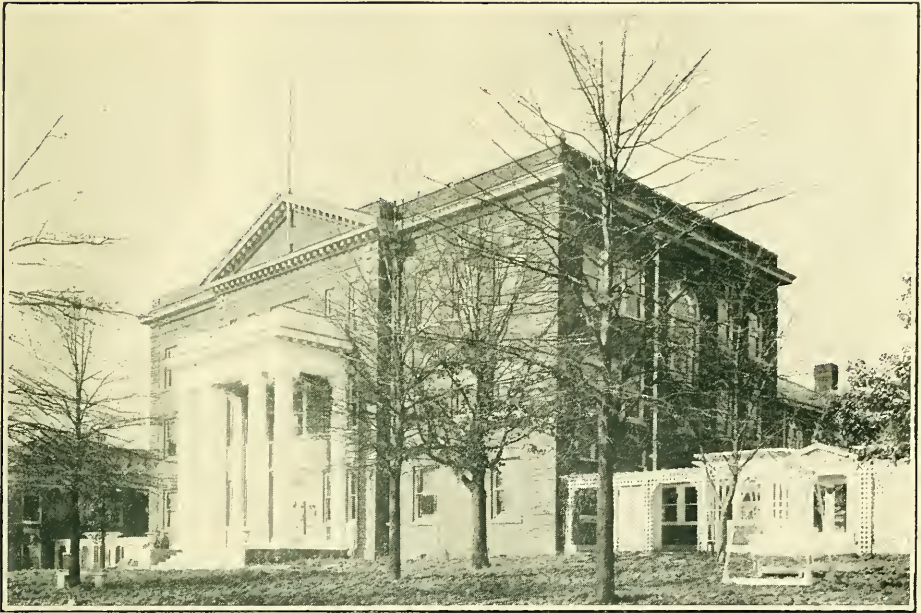

THE EAST BUILDING AND THE WHITE DORMITORY

THE first unit of the new White Dormitory is shown attached by corridor to the East Building, with sun parlor between. Hot and cold running water, clothes closets, hospital beds, attractive oak furniture, perfect light and ventilation for every room in the dormitories.

THE FRONT OF THE WEST BUILDING

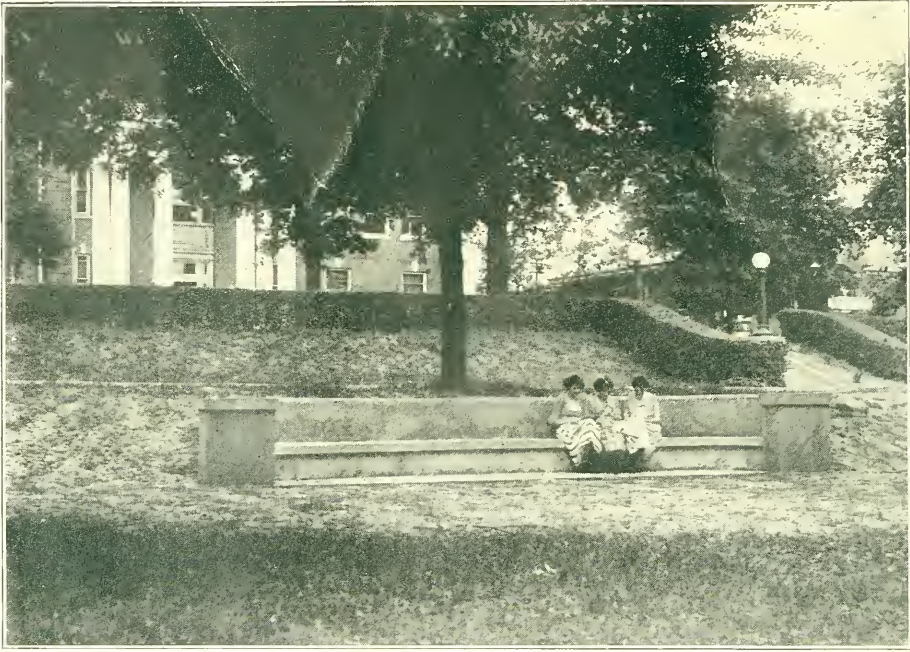

THIS indicates the dormitory scheme of two-story brick buildings extending rearward and flanking the main buildings on either side. The architects have conceived absolute safety from possible fire—dwellings without fear. The rooms are large, 18x20 feet, built en suite, with bath and other private conveniences of a modern hotel attached to every room, with corridor connections everywhere.
